CLAIMS TO HAVE BEEN STRUCK BY SHIFTING ENGINE

A man giving the name of John Mitchell and claiming Bangor, Me., as his home, was found wandering around the freight yards of the Boston and Maine railroad shortly before midnight, Wednesday night. He was bleeding from the mouth and he was cut about the face and claimed to have been struck by the shifting engine. Dr. J. J. Berry was called and he dressed the wounds which were confined to a few cuts and scratches about the face and head. The railroad yard men have some doubts about his being struck by the shifting engine, and think that he simply fell down.

PORTSMOUTH CASE UP

William W. McIntire's Suit for Damages

By Being Hit by an Automobile in August, 1908

Verdict in the Lumber Case for a Hundred and Four

The jury in the case of Perley R. R. Eaton of Dorchester, Mass., vs. the C. S. Hull Lumber company of Rochester, N. H., after two hours of deliberation on Wednesday afternoon gave a verdict of $104.58 for the plaintiff. An auditor once set the damage at $33.75 and an appeal by the plaintiff resulted in this verdict. The case was a disagreement over the defendant's fulfillment or non-fulfilment of a lot of lumber aggregating more than a million feet. The attorneys of record were Tupper of Worcester, Mass., for plaintiff, and Martin of Concord for defendant.

A Portsmouth Case

A jury was immediately drawn for the trial of the case of William W. McIntire of Portsmouth versus Edward S. Marshall of York, Me., a suit for $2,400 damages by being run over by an automobile at the corner of Congress and Fleet streets in this city on Aug. 31, 1908.

The plaintiff was riding a bicycle at the time, and claims that the defendant's automobile, was run backward so rapidly that it followed him up and ran him down. The defense is a denial of blame for the accident. Kelley, Harding and Hatch of this city appear for the plaintiff. The defense is conducted by Marshall of Portland and Mitchell and Guptill of Portsmouth.

The plaintiff on Wednesday afternoon called as witnesses P. M. Harvey, John T. Sheehan, Henry S. Marshall, Dr. S. F. A. Pickering, Dr. S. T. Ladd, John B. Parsons and William Wallace McIntire.

At the opening of court this morning, the trial was resumed with the plaintiff, William W. McIntire on the stand.

Mr. McIntire was followed by Dr. John G. Berry, and the plaintiff rested.

The defendant's witnesses, to testify to lack of blame for the accident, were the defendant, Mr. Edward S. Marshall and his chauffeur, Frank Saunders.

The arguments by Mr. Guptill for the defense and Mr. Kelley for the plaintiff were made and Judge Putnam began his charge, when suddenly Juror Herbert V. Foster of Winchester fainted in his seat. A hasty adjournment was taken. Till afternoon, when the judge finished his charge and the case was given to the jury.

The foreman of this jury is John W. Burns of Claremont.

Trial has begun in the case of Alexander Hould of Manchester versus the John P. Squire company.

CAR WHEEL BROKE

Track Torn Up and Narrow Escape From a Bad Accident

An eastbound freight train at Hampton on Wednesday afternoon had a narrow escape from being piled up on the side of the track. As it was, there was quite a bad mess which blocked the outward main line track for several hours.

That it was no worse is due to the speed of the train at the time. It was just getting under way when a wheel on a car of stone broke in two parts and dropped out alongside the track, letting the end of the car lurch on the track.

The train had gone nearly 100 yards before it came to a standstill after tearing up the ties for that distance.

Not a car left the track, however, except the car with the broken wheel. The Portsmouth wrecker was sent to the scene and while the mass was being cleared up all trains east and west were run on the inward tracks around the wreck.

POLICE COURT

One out of three got free transportation in police court today. William Miley and William Irving, for drunkenness were discharged. James Carey, for same offence, took the Bay Side Limited for a stay of 90 days at the county farm.

The Latest News About Electric Lights

St. Bernard Dog That Races the Electric Cars

Kittery, Me., June 2.

Julia F. Duncan is at the Maine state Christian Endeavor convention in Lewiston.

Passengers on the electric cars for Eliot are frequently amused and delighted by the antics of Bud, the huge St. Bernard dog belonging to Charles W. Gray at Gray Lodge. As the car passes the trestle at Weir creek, going north, the dog will often be found standing deep in the salt water. A moment later he will be rushing alongside the moving car, trying his best to outrun it and barking furiously as he goes, while passengers crane their necks in order to watch the pretty sight. He will sometimes plunge directly in front of the moving car, so that it seems as if he cannot escape being run over. He does not keep it up long enough for a Marathon race, for he drops out of the contest at Spiney's creek bridge or shortly before reaching the bridge. The car is usually ahead at the end of the run, but if the car happens to have made a stop or two it may be that the dog will lead, and then he will bark his satisfaction at the disappearing car as it crosses the bridge into South Eliot.

Alfred Spiney of Eliot has the contract for setting electric poles in Kittery.

Hon. Horace Mitchell was at the meeting of the Republican county committee in Sanford on Wednesday.

Hon. Horace Mitchell will not operate his own electric lighting plant this summer to light his hotel and other buildings in the vicinity, but has closed a contract with the Rockingham County Light and Power company of Portsmouth to do the job. He has recently had the Lawrence cottage wired for lights and now has men at work on his private residence, the Sparhawk, putting in wires and fixtures, that his family may enjoy electric lights as soon as the wires are strung from Portsmouth and the power turned on.

There was a large gathering of sorrowing friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Manson on Monday afternoon, to attend the funeral of their beloved daughter, Mrs. Walter Hatch. Appropriate words were spoken by Rev. F. C. Norcross and Rev. E. H. Macy, and Mrs. William P. Gray sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Abide with Me." She was laid to rest in the cemetery on Bolt Hill in Eliot. There were many beautiful flowers contributed by those who loved her, the list being: Mound, husband and family. Wreath, Mother, father and family.

BOTH BLAME AND PRAISE

For Roosevelt Because of His Guild Hall Speech

APPROVED BY UNIONISTS

They Seize the Opportunity to Attack
Liberal Government, While Liberals
Resent Emphatic Advice on a Difficult Question—All Shades of Opinion Challenge Propriety of Utterances Concerning Egyptian Policy

London, June 2.—Theodore Roosevelt is the object of varying criticism by the press as the result of his speech on the occasion of receiving the freedom of the city of London, in which he bluntly lectured his hosts on the Egyptian question and told them "either to rule Egypt properly or get out."

The editorial comments upon his startling utterances concerning British rule in Egypt are influenced as a rule by partisanship. The Conservative press defends the conclusions drawn by the American statesman, while the Liberal papers oppose his deductions with equal seriousness. But outside the questions of fact set forth, the newspapers almost without exception challenge the propriety of a foreign guest of the city criticizing the colonial policy of the empire.

Unionist newspapers take advantage of the incident to attack the present government, while the Liberal press rebukes the American visitor for seizing the opportunity of a ceremonial occasion in compliment to himself to attack the national policy on an admittedly delicate situation.

Says The Daily News: "What would Mr. Roosevelt himself have thought if, when the Philippine question was a burning issue in America, or at the height of the agitation against the Japanese, an English statesman who had been premier of England, and might be premier again, had used the opportunity during his receiving the freedom of New York to deliver himself of a trenchant judgment and emphatic advice on these difficult questions? Mr. Roosevelt would have resented this intervention and so would have the American people, without regard to party."

The Standard says: "It is humiliating to receive this rebuke of an alien critic, even from one animated by a sincere friendship. Yet we cannot deny that the censure is deserved. After all, Mr. Roosevelt does not hit the nail on the head, if it is in a rough sledgehammer fashion."

These two extracts are fairly representative of the comment, favorable and unfavorable, which is being made upon the frank criticism with which Roosevelt astonished all England when he was formally made a freeman of the ancient city of London at the Guild hall.

Mr. Roosevelt read the comment with interest, but neither praise nor condemnation seemed to affect his attitude. When asked his opinion of the editorials, he merely smiled.

Mr. Roosevelt yesterday turned from the profession of world politics to become a student of England's internal affairs. He was given a luncheon at the Carlton hotel by the Irish Nationalists, as the guest of John Redmond, leader of that party.

Testimony of Woman Bookkeeper in Pawtucket Graft Case

Providence, June 2.—A remarkable story was told in the superior court by Miss Olive Beaudry, formerly a bookkeeper for James Beach, a contractor, who, with Peter Casey, is charged with defrauding the city of Pawtucket by means of false vouchers in stone contracts.

Miss Beaudry testified that William H. Barclay, postmaster of Pawtucket and formerly a city official, gave her $200 to leave the city and not testify in the stone contracts case. She went to Springfield, where, she alleges, Barclay followed her and told her the sheriff was looking for her. She then entered a Montreal convent.

In Montreal, the young woman claims, she was visited by a lawyer, who advised her to change her name. She finally did so and went to another convent.

Exciting Contest

Epsom Downs, June 2.—The 131st Derby of $32,500 for three-year-olds, distance one mile and a half, the classic of the English turf, was won by Fairlie's Lemberg. Seventeen horses started.

From the start the race was between four horses. Greenback settled down in the lead with the two favorites, Lemberg and Neill, second and fourth, respectively. There was little change of positions until the horses were close home, when Lemberg passed Greenback and maintained a bare lead at the finish. Two lengths separated Greenback and Charles O'Malley. Neill Gow was close up in the first flight.

WANIAC THROWS POT AT CROWN PRINCE

Narrowly Misses Head of Heir to the German Throne

Berlin, June 2.—A Polish Jew attempted to kill Crown Prince Frederick William while the latter rode at the head of the Grenadier Guards in the annual review at Tempelhof field.

The would-be assassin was subsequently identified as Abraham Pierwells. He was captured after a struggle and doctors who examined him say that he is violently insane. That he does not belong to any organized band of conspirators was shown by the weapon that he used, a large zinc pot which had been filled with beans.

He hurled the weapon with terrific force, however, and it narrowly missed the head of the crown prince.

The missile struck the head of a policeman who stood at salute nearby and cut a deep gash in his head.

The crown prince was the representative at the review of the kaiser, who was unable to attend because of the abscess on his wrist.

NEVER LIVED WITH HIS WIFE

DIES OF STRANGE MALADY

Had Been Taken to Hospital After He Was Too Weak to Talk—Coroner's Inquiry Reveals Fact of Which Even Woman's Parents Were Unaware—Widow in State of Collapse After Being Closely Questioned

New York, June 2.—Through the decision of Coroner Hies to hold an inquest into the death of Edward F. Hollister of Tremont, who died in St. John's hospital, this city, after a short illness, it became known that for nearly two years Hollister had been married. His wife was Mrs. Althea K. Raymond, daughter of Willis W. Knickerbocker of this city. Not even the parents of the young woman knew that she was Mrs. Hollister until her husband died. Hollister was 59 years old. Mrs. Hollister is 23 years old.

According to Mrs. Hollister, she married because she was lonely. The couple never lived together, and it was agreed, she said, at the time of the marriage, in October, 1908, that they would not live as husband and wife until Hollister could recoup the fortune he had lost during the panic of 1907. Hollister had been a friend of the Knickerbocker family for years.

Coroner Hies ordered the inquest into the death of Hollister because of the peculiar circumstances surrounding his death. An autopsy has been performed, but the physicians present report that the man's death was due to natural causes.

Mrs. Hollister has been questioned by both the police and the coroner, and is now in a state of collapse. Her husband, she said, was taken ill on Saturday, a week ago. She nursed him for a couple of days. Seeing him grow weaker she thought it best to have him taken to St. John's hospital. Hollister was too weak to talk after being taken to the hospital.

It was not until the physicians told the young wife that her husband could not live that she told her father that she had married Hollister. Mrs. Hollister was at the hospital from the time her husband was taken there until he died.

Immediately after his death, Coroner Hies and Dr. Barnes, the hospital physician, questioned Mrs. Hollister at length. Mrs. Hollister said: "The coroner asked me many questions about the drugs my husband had taken. Mr. Hies said it looked as though he had taken ground glass."

The coroner ordered an autopsy. Barnes, who performed it, said: "The autopsy shows death was due to natural causes."

Coroner Hies, however, has decided not to end his investigation until an inquest has been held and all the facts brought out.

Mrs. Hollister's first marriage occurred in 1901. She was only 19 years old at the time. On an excursion to West Point in 1900 she was married by a justice of the peace to George Raymond, a wealthy mine promoter and prospector. Raymond was killed in a mine explosion a year later. He left a large fortune to his widow.

Speaking of her marriage, Mrs. Hollister said Hollister was best man at her father's wedding, that he carried her in his arms as a baby, and that their wedding was due to the loneliness of both.

DIVORCE NOT RECOGNIZED

Priest Refuses to Marry a Couple For the Second Time

Pawtucket, R. I., June 2.—After having been divorced last March on his wife's charge of extreme cruelty, Robert Berndt, a contractor of this city, has succeeded in winning her back and the couple applied at the city hall for a license to remarry.

But when they attempted to put their plans into operation they encountered an obstacle in the form of the Catholic church, which does not recognize the divorce court.

Not only did Father Lowmy refuse to perform the ceremony, but his further, declared it entirely unnecessary. He said he would give them his blessing instead and they afterwards departed for the summer home of Berndt.

MADRIZ ARMY CRUSHED

Expedition Against Nicaraguan Provisional Capital Proves Disastrous

Bluefields, June 2.—The campaign of President De Facto Madriz against the provisional capital, Bluefields, came to a disastrous end when the government troops, under General Lara, were driven back in a rout by the insurgent forces of General Estrada, whose battle was won virtually by the American sharpshooters and gunners in his lines. Hundreds fell yesterday.

The expedition against Bluefields has met the same fate as that which was dealt out to the Estrada expedition against Managua, the de facto capital.

The final charge on Bluefields came after a series of minor victories for Estrada. The Madriz soldiers were thrown back and the Estradians charged from their trenches. A desperate hand to hand conflict followed.

BANKERS RECEIVE TERMS IN PRISON

Given Two and Four Months in Pittsburg Bribery Cases

Pittsburg, June 2.—After having pleaded no defense to charges of conspiracy and bribery in connection with the recent municipal corruption exposures, two bankers were sentenced to jail and fined.

E. H. Jennings, president of the Columbia National bank, and G. A. Grefen, cashier of the same institution, appeared before five judges, the former receiving a fine of $500 and a sentence of two months in jail, and the latter receiving a fine of $500 and a sentence of four months in jail. The two bankers were immediately taken to jail to begin their term of sentence.

Jennings and Grefen confessed to the court some time ago that they had contributed their share of a pool with which to influence legislation in city council looking towards the selection of their bank as one of five city depositories.

Chicago, June 2.—Frank Gotch, world's champion heavyweight wrestler, defended his title against Zyzsko, the giant Poiander, winning the match in two straight falls.

The champion made a fine record in the first fall. The men had barely come together when Gotch got his hold, a bar and half Nelson, and Zyzsko's shoulders were on the mat and he was adjudged to have lost the fall in 6 1/2 seconds. This is the fastest time for a fall in any championship match on record.

Gotch won the second fall and match in 27.35 on a bar arm and wrist lock.

THIEVES BURN THEIR BRIDGES

Wool Merchants Lose Up-

WORK OF ORGANIZED GANG

Police Have Brought Some Teamsters to Justice, but Have Been Unable to Reach Men Back of the Scheme,
Who Are Well Posted in Trade—
"Ring" Is Extremely Adroit in Carrying on Their Business

Boston, June 2.—The most amazing series of robberies ever perpetrated in Massachusetts, through which the wool merchants have lost a sum in wool expected to exceed $300,000, is the startling mystery that confronts the police and officials of this state.

Full bags of wool, weighing about 300 pounds each, have been dumped from caravans at convenient places along Boston's streets, where they were picked up by others of the gang; bales have been dumped in boats that have drawn up under wharves, and other methods have been employed to get the wool without detection.

The thieves members of the ring, so-called, have employed most marvelous methods of burning their bridges behind them so that those whom the police have so far succeeded in bringing to justice are but the small fry.

The wool has been stolen from storage warehouses along the water front, from cars on the different railroads running into this city and from teams used for transporting the large bags from car to storage or from there to the wool merchants' places of business.

It is now almost certain that the wool dealers of Boston will form a protective association. They are also preparing a law requiring all junk dealers to report the receipt of wool and other commodities which are purchased by them when the article is new.

The firms which have suffered greatly from the wool gang have appealed to the police for relief. So far officers have succeeded in bringing some of the teamsters to justice, but up to this time they have been unable to reach the men back of the scheme.

Although it is admitted in many places that the wool robbers will go far above the estimate of $300,000, it is impossible to learn of the exact loss suffered by the merchants dealing in this commodity. Boston is acknowledged the wool centre of this country, and the business from one year's end to the other goes well up into the millions. Of this the greater part is of domestic wool, which sells to the mills at an average price of from 12 to 28 cents per pound.

The robberies, in most instances, have been of domestic wools, and this in itself shows the adroitness of the ring, as the bonded wool bales are weighed by government employees, and a loss from one of the bales would be readily learned and could promptly be traced.

With their intimate knowledge of the wool traffic and the knowledge that the dealers cannot learn of a loss until the wool stolen has been shipped through many hands, and in most cases is made up into cloth, the gang have been successful to a remarkable degree in covering their trail.

BARTLETT ALONE IS HELD

Three Youths Were Simply Hired to Man Stolen Launch

Newburyport, Mass., June 2.—William Bartlett of Boston, A. A. Stowe, George Webster and Archie Perkins, all of Haverhill, pleaded not guilty in court here to a charge of the larceny of the steam launch belonging to George E. Whitney of New York city.

The launch in question was said to be stolen from Whitney's summer home at Island Pond, N. H., brought to Haverhill on a dory and put into the Merrimack river, where the four were captured after a hot chase by the Haverhill and local authorities.

The complaints against Stowe, Webster and Perkins were filed, and Bartlett's case continued one week. Bartlett furnishing bonds of $500.

The police were satisfied that the trio of Haverhill youths were simply hired to help man the boat and that they had no hand in any theft.

LOBSTER FIVE FEET LONG

Granddaddy of Crustaceans Tips the Scales at Nearly 25 Pounds

Boston, June 2.—One of the largest lobsters ever taken from the water was brought in by Captain Frank Gasp of the schooner Matchless.

The crustacean, which weighed nearly twenty-five pounds and which was five feet in length, was taken from the bottom of the ocean off Chatham.

It is estimated that the lobster must have been in the neighborhood of 20 years old.

La Follette Rate Amendment Killed
Washington, June 2.—The senate defeated Senator La Follette's amendment to the rate bill providing for the physical valuation of railroads.

HIGHER RAILROAD FARES

Boston Commuters Are Not Affected by the Advance

Boston, June 2.—It now costs more money for a good many railroad tickets out of Boston. Rates went up on the Boston and Maine's Fitchburg division and on the Boston and Albany. Increases on the other Boston and Maine divisions will come July 1. The New Haven road, which recently increased the fare to New York by a dime, is expected to put up intervening rates soon. This, it is explained, is the result of recent wage increases on these systems.

Boston and Maine travelers living within fifteen miles of Boston are not affected by the increase, nor are the season ticket or the commutation (twelve-trip) rates any higher. It is the single ticket to distances of sixteen miles from Boston or over, which are higher.

The following shows some of the main stations affected by the change on the Boston and Maine: Boston to Lowell, 62 to 60; Boston to Lawrence, 53 to 50; Boston to Concord, N. H., $1.42 to $1.60; Boston to Portsmouth, N. H., $1.15 to $1.40; Boston to Portland, Me., $2.30 to $2.50; Boston to Rochester, N. H., $1.55 to $1.90; Boston to Bellows Falls, Vt., $2.25 to $2.00.

FALSE FRIENDS PLAYED

Over the Body of Hibbard and in Presence of Mourners

Boston, June 2.—In the presence of over 1000 people, among whom were numbered the highest officials of this state and city, representatives of the federal government and scores of others prominent in the social, business and political life of the entire state, Dr. John H. Holmes flayed the political enemies of the late Mayor Hibbard at the funeral exercises of the latter, in the Church of the Third Religious society (Unitarian).

Declaring that the experiences of Hibbard during the past three months were heartbreaking, he asserted that some of the wounds from which he died were stabs in the back, dealt by those whom he thought were his friends.

Pillorying those whose standard Hibbard carried and who deserted him, he said, in his hour of need. Haynes referred to the pages of tributes which were paid to Hibbard after his death, saying that many of them came from those who scandalized him when he was in life.

WALSH LEADER IN FARO BUNCO GANG

Identified When Pictures of
"Jack Leonard" Are Shown

Boston, June 2.—"Jack Leonard," the man of mystery who played such a prominent part in connection with "Big Bill" Kellher in swindling George W. Coleman by means of false facts in New York, according to the sworn story of Coleman on the witness stand, was identified as Martin J. Walsh, regarded as "the brains of the faro bunco gang."

Coleman told on the stand how "Jack" induced him to begin gambling after he had quit the game by introducing him to Kellher in Boston a year ago. George H. Lowe, who knew Walsh well, identified pictures in the trial of Kellher as those of Walsh, that Coleman and Lockhart had previously declared were the pictures of "Jack."

"Jack" disappeared when the coils of the law began to close about Coleman. He had lived luxuriously on Huntington avenue. Prospective victims of the faro gang, it has been declared, were wine and dined in Walsh's establishment. Walsh's whereabouts are not known, as he fled when the exposé came.

A WELL-EARNED VACATION

Teacher Absent From School for Two Days in Fifty-Five Years

Quincy, Mass., June 2.—Miss Julia E. Underwood has been granted a year's leave of absence from her duties as teacher in the local schools as a testimonial from the school board of its appreciation of fifty-five years of faithful service.

Not only has Miss Underwood seen fifty-five consecutive years of service, but also her teaching work up to last year has all been done in the same building.

During her fifty-five years of service, Miss Underwood has missed but two days, both on account of illness.

THE JOYS WE MISS.

How small a portion of our life it is that we really enjoy! In youth we are looking forward to things that are to come; in old age we are looking backward to things that are gone past; in manhood, although we appear indeed to be more occupied in things that are present, yet even that is too often absorbed in vague determinations to be really happy on some future day when we have time.—Colton.

GAYNOR AND HEARST

The echoes of the New York publishers' dinner in April do not seem likely to die out. That was the occasion when Mayor William J. Gaynor made his famous attack on William R. Hearst by accusing the Hearst newspaper in New York of deliberately falsifying in reports of city business.

The facts appear to be that Judge Gaynor slipped over very badly on that occasion. He is making a popular New York mayor, but many breaks like that would weaken his popularity.

BIRDEYE VIEWS

Governor Hughes of New York is no quitter.

The Canadian government has honored Captain Bernier, the Arctic explorer, with a grant of 960 acres of land on Baffin Island in Davis strait. What do you suppose it is worth per acre in that location?

June 1 marked the opening of the special court of arbitration at the Temple of Peace, in The Hague, to consider the perennial topic of the Newfoundland fisheries. The bone of contention now carried to The Hague is the intent of the provision of article I, of the British-American treaty of 1813, defining the fishing rights of Americans and Canadians off the west coast of Newfoundland. Newfoundland holds that the right to fish in those waters was granted to the inhabitants of the United States only. The United States contends that its citizens may exercise this right by going there in their own vessels with crews of Swedes, Canadians or Newfoundlanders. The treaty further confines the right of fishing "to the coast." The United States interprets these words as including the bays, harbors and creeks. Newfoundland maintains that Americans may fish only outside the coast line proper. There are further subsidiary points in dispute. The matter is one of much importance to the deep sea fishermen of New England.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

No Catch to the Maine Appropriation. It has been suggested that the sum of $100,000 which Congress has appropriated for the raising of the Maine is inadequate—was purposely made inadequate so that the question would have to be discussed all over again before a start could be made on the popular project. The impression the public would be apt to get from this is that the recent act of congress was purely a scheme to silence those who have been urging the removal of the Maine for the sake of dignity and decency. But Congressman Sulzer of New York, who has been one of the foremost advocates of the removal proposition, explains that "there is nothing in the question of the appropriation of $100,000 being too small to raise the wreck of the Maine. That appropriation was merely to start the work; in other words, a continuing appropriation, and all money necessary to carry out the provisions of the act to raise the Maine will be appropriated by congress as required." This explanation should satisfy the doubters.—Boston Journal.

An Italian Hospital

An interesting sociological fact is the movement among the Italians of Boston, of whom there are about 50,000, to establish a hospital of their own. Italian immigrants are said by the Gazzetta del Massachusetts to be very reluctant to avail themselves of American hospitals because they do not like American cooking and because, being ignorant of the language, they prefer to be treated by physicians of their own nationality. It is the laudable purpose of those in charge of the movement to raise the necessary funds among the Italians themselves and call it "Columbus hospital," for, says the Gazzetta, "the best way of honoring the dead is to safeguard the welfare of the living, and to do it with deeds, not with idle words, with abusers and fireworks."—Boston Globe.

LITERARY NOTES

Instant Relief For Sore Feet

Sore Feet, Tender Feet and Swollen Feet Cured Every Time, TIZ Makes Sore Feet We'll No Matter What Ails Them.

Policemen all over the world use TIZ. Policemen stand on their feet all day and know what sore, tender, weary, swollen feet really mean. They use TIZ because TIZ cures their feet right up. It keeps feet in perfect condition. Read what this policeman has to say: "I was surprised and delighted with TIZ for tender feet. I hardly know how to thank you enough for it. It's superior to powders or plasters. I can keep my feet in perfect condition. Believe in my earnest gratitude for TIZ. I am a policeman and keep on my feet all day."—Emzy Harrell, Austin, Texas.

You never tried anything like TIZ before for your feet. It is different from anything ever before sold. TIZ is not a powder. Powders and other foot remedies clog up the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous excretions which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet. You'll never limp again or draw your face in pain and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person.

TIZ is for sale at all druggists at 25c per box, or it will be sent you direct if you wish from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. J. N. Sutton, Candidate For Congress From Oregon

Still firmly believing she can prove that her son, Lieutenant James N. Sutton of the marine corps, was murdered in Annapolis in October, 1907, and despairing of redress from the naval authorities, Mrs. J. N. Sutton intends to appeal to congress. With that view she will offer herself as a candidate for a seat in the house from the Portland (Ore.) district in the approaching campaign. Her purpose in congress will be to induce legislation that will reopen the inquiry into this much discussed tragedy.

Roosevelt's hunting experiences, leads the June number of Scribner's Magazine. In "Elephant Hunting on Mount Kenya," he gives all the romance and adventure that is associated with the huge animal that is the subject of unflagging interest around the camp fires of African hunters. The African elephant has never been trained as the Indian elephant, therefore neither the natives nor the hunters have the kind of intimacy and knowledge which domestication gives; moreover hunting in the forest is surrounded with danger and excitement, which Mr. Roosevelt has graphically portrayed in this article.

SOAKING UP GOLF

(From Outing.)

The common faults of the golfer may be named in the following order of importance: Swinging too quickly, taking the eye off the ball, holding the left hand under the club, keeping the hands too near the body and standing too near the ball. The easiest, indeed, the only satisfactory way of curing all these faults is to go out and watch someone like Findlay Douglas or Walter Travis or Fred Herreshoff play. If you cannot find any expert of the first class go for the best available. This, of course, is rudimentary advice and certainly not original. The youngest caddy at St. Andrews has learned to request his master to keep his eye on the ball and not to press. The trouble is that no amount of book teaching will make you follow this advice. There is only one way to hit a golf ball. You must watch a good player and imitate what he does. Most beginners make the mistake of taking lessons from professionals who watch their pupils play and try to correct them. The pupil would get twice as much good out of the lesson, if he would watch the professional play and think as little as possible about himself. The human being is naturally imitative. If you sit and watch a good tennis match between first class players you will unconsciously finish your stroke better the next time you take up the racket. With golf this is particularly true because nothing is so important as the rhythmical timing of the stroke which distinguishes a good player from bad.

EVENTS OF ELIOT

Republicans and a Democrat at Committee Meetings

An Eliot Man Injured by a Fall at Scarboro

Eliot, Me., June 2. Alfred Park is in the Trull hospital at Biddeford, having been taken there on Wednesday afternoon from Pine Point, Scarboro. Mr. Park was at Pine Point to look at some cottages and was picked up at the railroad station in a dazed condition. He recovered his senses enough on Wednesday evening to explain that he occupied spare moments kicking at a rotten place in the depot platform, when suddenly his foot broke through a rotten piece of wood and he fell to one side, striking his head on the lumber. As he is a young man, his injuries are expected not to prove serious.

A large attendance is expected this evening at the laying of the corner stone for Grange hall.

Walter P. Perkins, Esq., and Mrs. Perkins of Concord are visiting in town.

Mrs. Sylvester Judkins is suffering from typhoid fever.

William Dargin is at York Beach, the guest of his nephew, Perley Spiny.

Moses E. Goodwin was at Saco on Wednesday to attend a meeting of the York county Democratic convention. It was decided to hold the county convention July 7 at Saco, the same date and place as for the congressional district convention.

The ladies circle of the South Eliot Advent Christian church met this afternoon with Mrs. Sophia Dixon.

T. F. Staples and Judge Aaron B. Cole were at Sanford on Wednesday to attend the meeting of the Republican county committee. It was decided to hold the convention in Alfred on a day to be selected at the next meeting of the committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Manson were in North Kittery on Wednesday to attend the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Walter Hatch.

Electric Sign advertising is no longer an experiment. The most successful firms of world-wide reputation as well as the stores with whom we have done business give us facts that prove the advertising worth of Electric Signs to be far in excess of any method of advertising that has ever been devised for the amount expended.

Look for the most enterprising city of today and you will find one that uses Electric Signs on all available locations and where merchants appreciate the advertising value and use light. I am making and selling the best signs that can be produced, not the cheapest, but signs that will stand up and give service for years. Recent inventions have reduced the cost and also the cost of maintaining. Public spirit and civic pride demand well lighted business sections in our cities, why not do your part with a well lighted, artistic Electric Sign and increase your business as well.

I charge nothing for estimates or sketches and am always willing to explain details and serve your interests. Respectfully yours,

MILK WAR STILL ON

Boston, June 2.—Despite hints which have been dropped by both sides the past few days to the effect that the milk war was about to terminate and that yesterday farmers would be again shipping their milk to Boston, June 1 came with the milk war still on in its original vigor and no immediate prospects of a settlement in sight.

Monday the producers, through the officers of their organization, considered the offer of D. Whiting & Sons and rejected it. That offer was merely for the transference of the months for which the contractors pay winter rates for the milk, the periods of summer and of winter rates being neither shortened nor lengthened. Since then the firm of H. P. Hood & Sons has made a verbal offer to the producers of one month more at winter rates, which is something of a concession, although the producers have been standing out lately for 10 months at winter rates, instead of the entire year, as they originally started to fight for.

Some of the executive officers and the directors of the producers' organization were about the American House on Tuesday, and informally they were discussing the offer of H. P. Hood & Sons. No meeting of the officers or directors has been called to consider the Hood offer, but it is likely that sometime today or this evening the matter will be taken up and some sort of a decision arrived at as to what the producers will do about it.

When asked what the situation was on Tuesday, Pres. Stanley H. Abbott of the Producers' association said "Everything is very vague. We have an offer from the Hood people which is more of a concession than has yet been made to us, as it concedes one month more at winter rates. The Whiting offer was no concession whatever, and we have rejected it. What will be done about the Hood offer I do not know, as no meeting has been called to consider it." Probably we shall get together late in the day to talk it over."

Memorial Taps and Volleys

Fort Constitution, N. H., June 1, 1910. The Editor, Portsmouth Herald, Portsmouth Herald, Portsmouth, N. H.

Sir:—I noticed in your edition of the 31st inst., with reference to the Memorial day parade, an item in your valuable paper in which you have misrepresented the facts regarding the sounding of taps and the volley firing.

The account which I have reference to stated that Musician Merrill, of the U. S. marine corps, sounded taps and that the U. S. marine corps, did the volley firing. A mistake no doubt was made and the true facts were not given to you for publication.

The sounding of taps was sounded by Musician Richard L. Montague, 156th Co. (Mine) C. A. C. and the volley firing by the 156th Co. (Mine) C. A. C.

A correction of your recent publication, in your next edition will be greatly appreciated by the soldiers of the 156th Co., (Mine) C. A. C. Fort

"Every Inch a Soldier"

Editor of Herald:—
 The expression "every inch a soldier" was very aptly applied to Master Garland Tucker, the captain of the Havens in the school parade on Memorial day.

This young man who is brimful of patriotism, not only on an occasion of this kind, but at all times, performed his duties as leader in a manner which would have reflected credit upon one of wider experience in this line.

Master Garland displays great enthusiasm in all things pertaining to the welfare of this country. If the love for the American flag and the time, patriotic spirit which this boy possesses is an example, we shall indeed have every reason to be proud of this country, these blessed United States.

PORCH AND PIAZZA COMFORT

Tramps and suspicious characters are known to avoid a house lighted with electricity, and for this reason the house equipped for electric lighting is far safer to live in.

With the electric porch light the light can be turned on from the vestibule or hall, thus flooding the porch with light, and giving the person inside the choice as to whether the door shall be opened or not.

"Should you entertain friends in the evening, the electric porch light can be turned on, giving your house an inviting appearance and pointing the way for your guests, instead of leaving them to grope their way in the darkness or to light matches to read your house number.

Electricity is the best outdoor light because the wind cannot blow it out. In fact, the state of the weather makes no difference with an electric light.

The Marriage of Mr. Moulton and Miss Goss

The Trip of the Junior American Mechanics to Hampton

Rye, June 2.

About sixty members of the Seaside council, No. 29, Junior Order United American Mechanics, went by special electric car, Tuesday evening to attend the union meeting held at Hampton. There were nearly 400 members present representing ten different councils from various parts of the state. Twenty-five candidates were initiated, the work being beautifully done by the Hampstead council degree team.

The crews of the several life saving stations along the coast went off duty at midnight, May 31, for a two months vacation.

The Boys club held a very interesting memorial service on Saturday evening at the club rooms. At the close of the entertainment refreshments were served.

On Wednesday at twelve o'clock noon, at the Congregational parsonage by Rev. H. A. Barber, occurred the wedding of Miss Harriet Goss of Rye and Mr. Ernest Moulton of No. Hampton. After a wedding trip they will reside in North Hampton.

Salt as a Medicine.

I have in the past seven or eight years found the advantage of putting a little salt in all the water I drink. I also put a little salt, with sugar and milk, in every cup of tea, coffee or cocoa I use.

I have been a resident in the tropics for over forty years and except for a sprained ankle have not had occasion to call in a doctor or to take any medicine in the last thirty years. I believe every one's health in the tropics would be very much better if he used more salt. I find the benefit of drinking a tumbler of cold water with a little salt in it every morning on rising at about 5 o'clock, before my bath or cup of cocoa, which I usually take between 5:30 and 6.

If people could be induced to try the easy and cheap method of taking a little common salt with the water they drink they would in the generality of cases find that they would seldom require other medicine.—F. N. Burn in Chambers' Journal.

"Your honor," said Peter Hardman's attorney, addressing the judge in the chancery court, "this is a case where Joel Hardman, who was married twice, left his property, supposed to be worth $300,000, to his only child, Peter, by his first wife, with this provision: If Frances Hardman, his only child by his second wife, should marry before she comes to be twenty years old and should have male issue before coming to the age of twenty-five, then the property is to be divided between Peter and his issue. If she should die before coming to the age of twenty-five, then the property is to be divided between Peter and his issue. MAKING SCHOOL HOURS PLEASANT

Plant Plenty of Trees Around the Schoolhouse.

PUPILS SHOULD LEND HELP.

Foliage Greatly Enhances Comfort and Adds to Attractiveness of Grounds. Children May Do the Work Under Direction of Teachers and Find it a Pleasure.

For those interested in the welfare of their home towns the following will prove very interesting and instructive: A friend of the writer, who was very proud of her son and deeply grieved at his apparent inability to succeed in speaking of him said: "I can't understand it. He went to school for twelve years and received an excellent education. I sent him to the district school, from there to the village high school and then supported him while he took a two year course at an agricultural college." Some time later the writer went to see this young man (who, by the way, was a most agreeable and kindly chap) on his farm. Then he realized that the most vital part of his education had been neglected. He was absolutely deficient in ability to see things. His powers of observation had never been awakened. The result was that the little things which make for success were overlooked.

Many a man has made a tremendous success in his life who was deficient in education, but trained to observe. This sense should be developed early, and the duty falls on the teachers in the country and village schools as well as on the parents. It is surprising how quickly children will become interested in watching and questioning about trees, birds, animals, etc. This interest nurtured and developed, is invaluable to the man or woman who expects to make farming his or her profession. By the use of this sense, we might at least call it, changes in the weather are foretold, the hay is cut at its very best stage, the health of the live stock is maintained, and so on through a long list of little things that count for so much.

In our country schools trees, flowers and birds are the most available and beautiful productions of nature that can be used to point out interesting things for the children to study. He young children realize that a tree is a living thing, with vital functions and parts; that they have systems of digestion, assimilation and respiration with organs for carrying on the wonderful and various processes of life; that the same as animals; that a tree breathes the same as an animal; that in the leaves the breathing goes on through the pores, and in the parts of the tree covered by bark it goes on through the small, light colored, round spots, which can be plainly seen on the young branches of nearly all trees; that some trees mature early, others take a thousand years; that in the same climate and soil conditions trees will assume different forms—one will develop a round, well branched top another will have a central stem, with some will yield turpentine, some sugar, and so on through the long list of trees, and finally that no two varieties of trees have the same bark or the same blossoms or manner of reproducing themselves.

There are sufficient practical reasons for planting trees about our schoolhouses, which should appeal to even the most matter of fact person. Perhaps the strongest reason is the comfort of the teachers and pupils who have to live in the schoolhouses for three or six hours a day for from six to nine months in the year. In summer the sun pours down its heat on the unprotected building, while in the winter the icy blasts necessitate a large supply of fuel, which often times fails to keep the inside temperature much above the freezing point.

A small sum of money invested each year in trees would soon produce a wonderful difference in the appearance of our schools. Trees are cheap and may be bought for 50 cents each from any reliable nurseryman, which would mean a contribution of 5 cents apiece from twenty scholars to cover all the cost, including expressage. The planting should be done in an intelligent, systematic way from some good plan. This should be a detailed outline of the situation. A map of the grounds should be made, with the buildings located and the spots where the trees are to be planted, shown. Before going as far as this, however, the teacher and the pupils should study something about the trees, their nature, size, habits and soil preferences. For example, a purple leaved beech should stand alone, where it can develop in all its glory. On the other hand, evergreens look well in groups or planted as a windbreak.

When the trees are planted interest will be awakened in our flowering shrubs, which blend so well with many of our trees and oftentimes make a building most attractive which otherwise would look bare and untidy. So we may accomplish two important things at the same time—the beautifying of our school grounds and the cultivation in our children of a love of nature and the power of observation.

A SNAKE STORY.

The Wonderful Old Time Serpent That Talked Like a Man.

In John Ashton's "Curious Creatures of Zoology" there is a quotation from "A Little Latin Boogie played at Vienna in the year 1551" which tells a most wonderful story. Ashton quotes as follows: "There was found in a move or rye of corn almost as many snakes, adders and other serpents as there was sheaves, so as no one sheaf could be removed but there presently appeared a heap of ugly and fierce serpents. The country men determined to set fire upon the barn and so attempted to do, but in vain, for the straw would take no fire, although they labored with all their wits and police to burn them up."

"At last there appeared upon them at the top of the heap a huge great serpent, which lifted up his head and spoke with a man's voice to the country men, saying, 'Cease to prosecute your device, for you shall not be able to accomplish our burning, for we were not bred by nature, neither came we here of our own accord, but were sent by God to take vengeance on the sinners of men.'"

Ashton leaves us in the dark as to what the "country" men did, but it is natural to suppose that they surrendered at once.

THE DIVER'S DRESS.

Evolution of the Devices Used For Submarine Work.

Among pioneer inventors to whom the diving dress in its present perfected form owes so much was William Hammis Taylor. The previous bit or trials attempts were superseded by the Taylor patent of June 20, 1838, in which the essential feature was the valve allowing the admission of compressed air without an influx of water.

Previous to this time there had been the diving chest and the diving bell, of which the latter, introduced by Smeaton in 1778, was the safest and most practical device for submarine exploration. The diving bell has been developed alongside of the diving dress and is still in use.

The general appearance of Taylor's diving armor was like that of a knight's suit of mail, except for a prominent bulge in the body piece. A large pipe coming down from the surface and penetrating the body piece at the bulge supplied the fresh air, while a short pipe entered the body piece on the other side and was provided with a valve which carried off the exhaust. Although diving armor has now reached its perfected state, this valve has never been materially improved upon. —Scientific American.

A Mistaken Sign of Generosity.

The young son of a German town man who lives up to every cent of his income heard a compliment for his father the other day and passed it on, thinking to please the parental heart and win future favors perhaps from the parental purse.

"Heard something nice about you, dad," he announced over the dinner table.

"Ah, that's pleasant!" murmured father modestly.

"Heard you was awful good to mother," went on the boy.

"I hope I treat your mother as a man should treat the person he cares most for," responded father evenly.

"Heard you was so generous to her that every one in town knew about it. Heard a man say every one was talking about it too. He said everything you had in you for your wife's name."

The father's countenance underwent a sudden change. He spluttered for a moment painfully. Then he spoke.

"You go to bed!" said papa.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Pays Him to Stay Home.

A vest side matron proudly exhibited the lock of her front door to the afternoon caller. It was an intricate looking affair, resembling a gun machine more than it did a door latch. "You turn this," explained the woman, pointing to a tiny knob inside the door, "and you have fixed the lock so it can't be shot back by the key. To release the tumbler you've got to drop a coin in the slot outside. The only piece of money that will fit is a five dollar gold piece. The idea is my own. A locksmith downtown worked out the mechanical part of it for me. Every night at 10:30 I adjust the coin attachment. If my husband is out after that hour it costs him $5 to get in. He stays home evenings, as a rule."—New York Sun.

Money No Object.

"I don't care anything about it myself, for I'm no judge of such things," said Mr. Gaswell, "but my wife wants me to buy a rare old violin, and she says they come high. Got any?"

"We certainly have," responded the dealer. "Here's one in this showcase, genuine Stradivarius, that you can have for $3,000."

"She said she thought they came higher than that. Haven't you some that are a little—er—stradivariusous than this one?"—Chicago Tribune.

Another Simile.

"What did the sun look like to you when you were in the arctic regions?"

"Well," answered the explorer thoughtfully, "it resembled an elusive gold dollar much anguished."—Washington Star.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By CARL SCHUPFELD, Special Correspondent.

Washington business and professional men met at the Chamber of Commerce rooms the other night to discuss ways and means of making Washington the great convention city of the country. One of the suggestions was to raise a permanent fund, which will be available for campaign work in getting conventions to come to Washington and also in helping to entertain the delegates when they come here.

Anacostia Flats Improvement.

The conference committee of the rivers and harbors bill having agreed on an appropriation of $200,000 for continuing the work of improvement of the Anacostia river, it may be assumed as certain that this sum for that great betterment will be carried by the bill as finally enacted. This is another distinct and important step toward the abatement of what is almost a public nuisance and is a guarantee that this improvement, so essential to the health and beauty of Washington, will be pushed to speedy completion.

This one time clean, clear and romantic river has been shoaling and fouling for many years until it has become a serious menace to the health and happiness of thousands of citizens and a check on property values in the southeast section of the city and the southern suburban area.

Reclamation Long Delayed.

It is hoped that the time is not far off when this long, wide stretch of marsh and stagnant water, dirty and disease breeding, will be transformed into a park where multitudes will find sunshine, greenery and good air.

The improvement has been tardy in the making. For years the various citizens' associations have been hammering at congress to drain and reclaim this extensive cesspool. Everybody knows that it is often hard to convince congress of the need of spending money for improvements in a place that happens not to be a congressional election district. But the weight of public opinion and the incessant reiteration of sound argument and the effective assistance of good friends of Washington among our influential legislators are at last producing results.

Old Time Washington.

It was about 1820 when the citizens of Washington began to show interest in unbuilding the city and surrounding the government edifices with a community that would be a credit to the capital of the nation. But at that time it was a mere germ of what it has become, and indeed the people of that day would have been pronounced insane had they predicted the present Washington.

May 15, 1820, the charter of the city of Washington replaced former acts. In the lines of the city was a population of 13,000, 10,000 being white, while the District's population, including Alexandria and Georgetown, aggregated 33,000.

Streets Unimproved.

Before this date neither the local nor general government had done much to improve the avenues or streets, and few of them were more than mere passable roads. The public grounds west of the capitol extended on the north side of the avenue to Sixth street and on the south side to Four and One-half street, but the square adjoining the capitol grounds between First and Second streets intervened. Along the south side of the avenue to midway between Four and One-half and Sixth streets ran the city canal. The government had improved the avenue from the capitol grounds to the executive departments, and boarding house keepers in the neighborhood of the president's house were accustomed to notify members of congress and others in advertisements that their houses were "in easy walking distance of the capitol."

Dress of Other Days.

There yet lived here numbers who had helped achieve the independence of the nation, who were loath to give up the old style of dress—cocked hat, shabby coat and small clothes. With the government had come numbers of men prominent in scientific and literary circles, and as there were a number of residents of like inclinations soon there was a community equal in intellectual standing to any of its size.

Banks and Churches.

The Bank of Washington had not left its building on New Jersey avenue for its present location at Louisiana avenue and Seventh street. The Bank of the United States had located at the corner of Thirteenth and F streets, the Patriotic Bank on the avenue between Ninth and Tenth streets and the Bank of the Metropolis at Fifteenth and F streets. There were ten church buildings—two Baptist, two Catholic, one Friends or Quaker, two Methodist, two Presbyterian and one colored Methodist.

Other churches were contemplated, one each by the Catholics, Episcopalians and Presbyterians. The Unitarians were meeting in "the long room over the bath" on C street, had organized a congregation and were preparing to build. Religious services were often held in the capitol and in the halls of the navy and treasury departments. Such was old Washington.

The Ohio Society.

Members of the District of Columbia Ohio society are behind a movement which has for its purpose the erection of a large building in this city which shall serve as a club home for the organization and prove an investment in the shape of an office building. The matter has been under consideration for several weeks. The Ohio society, of which President Taft and practically every Buckeye in Washington is a member, is one of the largest state organizations at the capital.

Jo France the government is about to venture upon an experiment for raising money by letting or selling the rights of advertising on matchboxes, the sale of matches being a state monopoly. A proposal to this effect has been passed by the chamber of deputies. The proposer estimated that the advertising rights ought to bring in between $200,000 and $250,000.

Golf balls coated with luminous paint have been tried by members of the Old Trafford club, Manchester, England. On a moonless and cloudy night the experiment was made. The balls shone brightly in the darkness and were easily found. They can, it is said, be used in dry or wet weather, and each ball, according to the inventor, is good for several hours' play.

The managers of the enterprise, according to a circular just issued, "will bring together statistics, scientific exhibits and historical data which will be of great value to the human family." Requests for exhibits have been sent to all parts of the world.

Married by Accident

A Man Wins a Wife by Getting into the Wrong House.

By REGINALD D. HAVEN

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

On — street is a block of ten houses, every house exactly like every other house. I once lived in one of these houses, and I never went home but I ran a risk of getting into the wrong house.

In the fourth house was a young lady whose appearance I especially admired. I considered her very pretty, and she was certainly very stylish.

"Now, that's just the girl I would like for a wife," I used to say when I saw her going into or coming out of her home.

One afternoon I went home, and, finding the front door ajar, I walked in, put my hat and overcoat in the hall closet and went upstairs to a sitting room on the second floor. The room was shut in by brick walls, and I seldom sat there without turning on the light. Being tired, I threw myself into an easy chair and, closing my eyes, sat thinking on a matter of business that had occurred during the day. Presently, hearing a footstep and looking up, I saw a woman's figure standing in the doorway. There was not enough light to distinguish who she was, but I was not long kept in ignorance. She pressed a button beside the door, and a bright electric light showed me the girl who lived two doors from me.

"How is this?" I stammered. "Have I got into the wrong house?"

"I expect you have," replied the girl. "My dear me, I assure you I had no idea I'm very careless."

At that moment I heard the front door close. The girl heard it, too, and changed countenance.

"Good gracious, my aunt!" she exclaimed. "Well?"

"It is very unfortunate your being here. She is a very suspicious woman."

"I see. It would grieve me terribly to have her think—"

"Dear me, she's coming up here!"

"Can I get out without meeting her?"

"No. Go in there."

She shut me up in a large closet, and the next minute I heard the harsh voice of an old woman in the adjoining room.

"Lols," she said severely, "that young man you admire so much who lives in this block is in this house. I was sitting in Mrs. Deacon's window, next door, and saw him come up and walk in at the front door. What are you doing in this room with all this light turned on?"

"Why, Aunt Jane, you must be mistaken."

"Mistaken? Do you think I haven't eyes? Oh, heavens, Lols! Can it be possible that you are—are a wicked, bad girl? Upon my word, I believe you are hiding a lover. I'm going to have a look."

She made for the only place in the room possible for concealment—the closet—and had her hand on the door-knob when I heard a slight scuffle, and the young lady said:

"Aunt Jane, before you open that door I wish to say something to you. I have been deceiving you. I have been wooing and won clandestinely by the young man you have referred to. He is in that closet."

I must hasten to protect the honor of one I had compromised by my stupidity. I flung open the door, put my arm around the girl who had been driven to this falsehood, threw back my head proudly and said dramatically:

"No power on earth shall separate me from my wife."

"Well, I declare!" exclaimed the old lady.

My reputed wife buried her face in her hands, whether because the seriousness of the matter had occurred to her or whether to conceal laughter at its absurdity I did not know.

"Do you mean to say," continued the old lady to me, "that you are married to my niece?"

"There would be no use in mincing matters. I swore that I was her niece's husband."

"And you, Lols," continued the aunt—"are you really married to him?"

A faint "Yes" came from under the girl's hands.

"Well, well, well! Now you two young people could have done your courting without my finding you out is remarkable. How did you manage it?"

"I should think so," said the aunt impressively. "How long have you been married?"

"I didn't dare risk an answer to this question, fearing to be caught in a trap. I threw the burden on my bride."

"Lols, dear," I said, "tell your aunt all about it. She will be more forgiving at getting the story from one she loves. Or would you prefer sitting down with her alone and talking it all over with her?"

"I think I would like to have a little time," stammered Lols faintly.

"And I think I want the whole story this minute," cried the aunt.

"Had I not better withdraw?" I suggested. I was beginning to get very hot in the face. Confound these houses built in blocks! I'll never live in one again!

By this time Lols had thought what answer would be less likely to sink us deeper in the mire. It occurred to her that if she said we had just been married the result in the end would be less compromising, so she told her aunt that we had been married that day at noon. She bit upon this hour because she had been away from home at that time. Then her aunt asked if we had been married by a clergyman. Lols, dreading that the old woman would pounce on the domestic, told her that we had been married by a justice of the peace.

"A justice of the peace!" exclaimed the old lady contemptuously. "Do you call that a marriage? I shall telephone for our own rector at once. If you can't be married respectably you shall at least be married religiously."

She was making for the telephone. We both clutched her.

"Madam," I cried, "permit me to say a word. I beg of you to leave me and my—your niece alone together for awhile that we may talk this matter over. These unconventional marriages are liable to bring a stain upon the purities concerned. You certainly don't wish your niece to suffer in that way, do you? Give us an hour to decide as to when and how we shall publish our union to the world."

With a snift the old lady bounced out of the room.

The girl and I looked at each other. We would have laughed, but the affair was far too serious for mirth.

"You've got me into a terrible pickle," said Lols, much irritated.

"If I ask a thousand?"

"Why did you say we were married? I only said we were engaged. There was a retreat from that. There is none from marriage."

"An engagement doesn't warrant a girl having a lover in a closet."

"I don't suppose it does."

"Marriage is the only thing that will excuse that."

"But how are we going to get out of it?"

"Can't you confess the whole thing? It's a splendid joke, awfully funny. Haven't your aunt any sense of humor?"

"About as much as a cat has of poetry."

"What do you suggest?"

"I can't think of anything unless I do as you say—confess—but that would be the same thing as acknowledging criminality. Aunt Jane would never believe anything else."

"Then you can't get out of it without being smothered, at least to your aunt?"

"No, and she can never keep the secret. Others will know it. It will go everywhere. What shall I do?" She wrung her hands.

"There's another trouble in the way," I said. "She asked each of us if we admitted we were married. That in the presence of a witness makes us man and wife."

"Oh, my goodness gracious!"

There was a silence, at the end of which I said:

"I'm responsible for all this. Now let me make an admission. I have seen and admired you before, and I have said to myself, 'That's a girl I would like for my wife.' I heard your aunt refer to me as a person you had—" shutting her head—"had admired. Now, suppose we let the matter rest, pledging your aunt to keep our secret till we can determine what we wish to be the outcome of this singular adventure. I will keep my home; you can keep yours. If we decide not to be man and wife we can find some way out of it with your aunt. If we wish to be married we can have a more pretentious ceremony than the one just performed."

We flung up the hour deliberating, but found no better plan than this. Then we rejoined Aunt Jane, and I acted as spokesman.

"Aunt Jane," I said—"I presume I may now call you aunt—I admit that I have done very wrong in harrying your niece into a secret marriage, especially since my affairs are not just now in a condition that will enable me to take care of a wife in the style to which she has been accustomed. I ask a short time in which to get them in such condition, and I shall then acknowledge the marriage. As for myself, I would be willing to do this now, but Lols, whom we both love and whose reputation we are both bound to protect, thinks that we had better wait awhile, then announce an engagement and after a brief one celebrate a marriage without saying anything about the one that has occurred. Meanwhile I ask permission to visit my wife just as I would visit her with your permission to win her. I should have taken this course before. The strength of my love for her is my only excuse for not doing so. I am convinced that if she turns out to be as estimable a lady as her aunt I shall have won a treasure."

Aunt Jane gave me reason to be proud of myself for this speech by saying that it was never too late to do the right thing and she hoped I would prove myself as worthy as my words indicated.

I kissed the old lady at my departure, and my wife followed me to the door for the ostensible purpose of receiving a marital salute. I offered to avail myself of the opportunity, but Lols drew back.

I then returned to my own home, having been in the wrong house an hour and a half, during which I had married a wife to whom I had never before spoken a word and had conciliated her guardian.

I was not long winning my wife's consent to a public engagement and soon got my affairs in shape for a public wedding. When we entered the church there was not a person present who knew that the union of the contracting parties occurred from the groom having got into the wrong house.

HURLED CAN OF BEANS AT THE CROWN PRINCE

Berlin, June 2.—There was a commotion among the royal party returning from the annual joint review of the Berlin and Potsdam garrison at Tempelhof yesterday, when a man, who followed at a distance, hurled a missile at Crown Prince Frederick William.

The object missed the mark and fell harmlessly at the feet of a policeman. Upon investigation it was found to be an ordinary tin can, such as is used for the preservation of fruit and vegetables. It was filled with uncooked beans.

The party was about to enter the palace when the incident occurred, and for a moment it was believed that a bomb had been thrown.

The police seized the assailant, who proved to be a Russian named Abraham Flersweis, a resident of this city. It is thought that he is not responsible for his act.

The crown prince represented the emperor at the review, as the abscence of the emperor's right wrist is still bothering him. Among the Americans present were Herman Ridder and Mrs. Ridder of New York, Harold McCormick of Chicago, H. C. Emery of the tariff board and the German-American veterans who are visiting the fatherland.

Good Way to Wash Stable Blanket.

A stable blanket that has been in use all winter, is usually badly soiled and heavy as well as disagreeable from a sanitary standpoint. To wash the blanket is no small task, but by wise means it may be cleansed with little trouble and labor. Simply spread the soiled and saturated blanket on sod ground during a heavy spring rain, and if one rain does not cleanse put it out during another. As soon as the rain ceases and the blanket can be raised hang it up, dry it and take it in.

MANAGEMENT OF THE DAIRY HERD

Following is a very valuable article on the management of a dairy herd by an expert on matters pertaining to dairying which those interested in the subject will find useful and important.

Whether the cows be grades or pure breeds, it is of the highest importance in building up a dairy herd to secure a pure bred sire of outstanding dairy merit. Unless the sire is descended from good milkers it is folly to expect able to produce good milkers, no matter how fine or how ideal the may be as an individual.

Another matter of prime importance in the successful management of a dairy herd is the keeping of a record of the milk and butter fat produced by the individual cows of the herd. The keeping of a daily record of the weight of the milk of each cow is a very simple and inexpensive task.

All that is necessary is to have a small scale and a ruled sheet of paper upon which to record the weights of milk, morning and night. The daily weighing of the milk from each cow is valuable also in serving as a check upon the work of the milker.

The milk from each cow should be tested about once a month during the whole period of lactation. A satisfactory way of doing this is to collect what is known as a composite sample, which consists in securing about one-half ounce of milk from each of six consecutive milkings and placing this in a half pint composite sample jar containing a small amount of preservative.

The test of this composite sample will represent the average amount of butter fat for the period during which the sample was taken and will serve with sufficient accuracy as an average test during the entire month.

TWO VISITORS HAVE TROUBLES

Booze and Shoe Last Were the Source of it All

Portsmouth had two unusual visitors on Wednesday, one from Hampton and the other from Greenland, and both had a combination of pleasure and trouble.

The Hampton resident, after calling on several of his friends, who deal out the famous liquid products, and getting the necessary load under his belt, started for the depot to embark on the train for home, and his personal baggage consisted of a couple of quarts of cane juice which he purchased on his appearance before the brass rail. He was several hours getting the train, as his time was consumed in hunting for the booze while train after train went on to Hampton without him.

Somebody needed the two quarts of Old Medford and took it. After accusing most everybody he could find at the depot of lifting his hardware, and really shedding many tears in his hunt for the same, he departed for home stating that "Somebody here was crooked."

The Greenland man, besides doing a good business with the bar keepers purchased a pair of shoe lasts and, like his partner from the next town, somebody relieved him of his foot molds and in place of the same put two sticks of wood in his package which he found on his arrival home.

He is coming back to hunt them up and while there is a possible show of the Greenland man getting another look at his lasts the Hampton man has certainly had the last look at his two quarts.

PIANOS

It would be like carrying coals to New Castle for us to make any comments or to extol the virtues of the oldest piano in America in the face of the appended eulogium. Mr. Busoni has created the musical sensation of the year by his wonderful playing wholly on the CHICKERING.

March 18th, 1910.

Messrs. Chickering & Sons.

Gentlemen:—Not because it would be a comprehensible impulse of politeness, nor even because we are associated in one common artistic interest, but merely through sincere sympathy and pure conviction, I feel bound to express to you my high appreciation and my deep gratitude as far as are concerned your great achievements and your most kind services with the Chickering Pianos. To realize an enjoyable piano-playing, these are the conditions to perform beautifully beautiful music on a beautiful instrument. The first I try to obtain, the second is provided by great masters, charming masters, respectful masters, the third, undoubtedly you have produced into my hands. There are pianomakers' art studios, and there are pianomakers' manufactories. Remain, as you are, the artists in pianomaking. It is the way to add your own chapter to the history of music.

I am, Gentlemen,
Yours most faithfully,
